AFTER THE SQUALL

By HONORE WILLSIE

Copyright, 1905, by Honore Willsie

The lake lay smooth and dark like a piece of smoked glass. Along the shore the early green of the trees melted into the hazy gray of the sky. At the college pier the reflection of the pier posts wavered serenely from the reflected roof of the boathouse.

"Fit to give one the nightmare," Peggy exclaimed as Jack handed her carefully into the boat.

"It does look squally," said Jack, taking up the oars; "the sky, I mean, not the reflection."

"Pooh!" answered Peggy, curling herself up in the stern of the boat. "Do you suppose I'm going to let the prospect of a mere squall spoil my first boat ride of the year? Besides, we both can swim, can't we?"

Jack stared at Peggy with what was intended for a look of withering disdain.

"You bet, Peggy, if I thought there was any danger in this stunt I'd not take you."

Peggy raised her eyebrows. "Jack, what is the matter with you? Are you trying to be proud and haughty in an old sweater? My child, please recall that you had to be spanked into having your face washed. It is now, oh, Jack, too late to make an impression on my fresh young heart, I"—

"Gee, but you're crazy!" murmured Jack.

"And I," went on Peggy, ignoring the interruption, "I wish to state that this sudden development of courtesy in one who has pulled my hair and whose ears I have boxed both in sorrow and in anger makes me feel the necessity of reminding you that it is useless for you to fuss and put on airs, for you are nothing but a freshman after all."

Jack dug his oars viciously into the water, splashing his own red jersey and Peggy's white sweater.

"Strikes me you entered the same day I did. What time does that blooming matron say you'd have to be back?"

"Six o'clock. Otherwise it's Peggy before the house committee, and the Botany club depends on me to get the lichens to them before 7," she answered, making herself into a still smaller ball in the stern seat. The boat leaked a little.

"Oh, we'll be back in time easy. We'll reach the piles in half an hour."

Peggy looked a little anxiously at the sky. "That wind is coming up, Jack," she said. "I guess I'll get out the extra oars and help."

"You'll do nothing of the sort," answered Jack. "It's not a girl's work."

Peggy looked up quickly, then smiled to herself and settled back in her place again. It was very still and sheltered among the pines. The soft new needles smelled deliciously of spring, and the wind was only a faraway sigh in the treetops. The pine trees murmured, robins flickered among the soft fuzz of the new needles. Suddenly Jack pulled out his watch.

"Gee whiz," he said, "it's five minutes of 6!"

Peggy could feel herself going white. "Jack," she gasped, "it's not a funny joke to be hauled up by the house committee. They are all seniors, and no one is so hard on a freshman as a senior. They have been through all these scrapes and know how to strike hard."

They ran to the shore. In the shelter of the pines they had not realized that a heavy squall had grown out of the light wind of the afternoon. The water was thick with whitecaps, and the wind tore across the lake as if determined to aid the house committee against the delinquent Peggy.

Jack looked out at the water with lips tight pressed. "Peggy," he said, "I'll not venture out with you with a sea like that one, house committee or no house committee."

"Jack Howard," replied Peggy, "you've got to."

"Peggy!" He threw back his shoulders and eyed Peggy with dignity. "Peggy, you are not going to be drowned while I am around. I tell you I will not go till the squall is over."

Peggy threw back her girlish shoulders and eyed Jack with even greater dignity than his own.

"I'll not speak to you, Jack Howard, until you launch that boat." And with this she pulled her tam o' shanter down over her curly hair, walked back to the edge of the pines and, sitting down in the needles, stared with marked indifference at the sky above Jack's head.

Jack stood irresolute for a moment. Peggy had never looked more tantalizing. The white tam shaded a face that was almost irresistible, and he was conscious of an insane desire to obey the behests of that capricious, curly head even though so doing might lead to the bottom of the lake. But another look at the water and he withdrew to the foot of the tree opposite Peggy's. After lighting his pipe he studied his boots with impassive face. Minute after minute went by, and the cold spring dusk came on.

"I'm just freezing to this old pine tree," thought Peggy, "but I just won't give in. Doesn't he look dear and tragic, though? I wouldn't have missed this row for anything. Rows do bring out the character so. Now, who would have thought that I could be so firm?"

Little by little as the night settled down the wind sank, and as it sank a fine misting rain set in. Lake and shore, pines and sky slowly melted into one gray green tone that gave Peggy a shiver of desolation. Jack looked at his watch.

"Half past 7, Peggy," he said. "I am going to launch the boat."

They rowed out into the lake in dignified silence. Peggy, in her old place in the stern, snuggled down into her sweater and wondered how long she must maintain her difficult isolation.

Finally, "We ought to be home in three-quarters of an hour," came in soothing tones from Jack's end of the boat.

No answer from the stern.

"A nasty rain," from the rower's bench.

No reply.

"It's almost too dark to steer, isn't it?" was inquired tenderly.

Still no reply.

Heavier and heavier grew the darkness, and wetter and wetter became the white sweater and the red jersey.

"Oughtn't we to be there by now?" asked a nervous little voice from Peggy's end of the boat.

Jack hauled in his oars, struck a match and looked at his watch. "Gads!" he exclaimed. "It's a quarter after 8. Where in thunder have we got to?"

"There seems to be nothing around us," said Peggy, "but water."

"Steer more to the right, Peggy," said Jack. Then, after half an hour, "Try it to the left."

"Oh, dear!" sighed Peggy. "It's so dark. If we only could find a little something to land on!"

"Now, Peggy, dear," said Jack, "don't be frightened. I'll save you. I calculate that we are clear across the lake by now, and we will land at one of the lake farms and get some one to drive up to town. If we assure the house committee that we have been chaperoned ever since 9 o'clock they won't do very much to you."

"Oh, won't they!" said Peggy derisively. "You don't know them, my dear. They will have the time of their lives over me."

"Then," answered Jack firmly, "they will have me to reckon with."

"Isn't he romantic?" thought Peggy. Then aloud, "Oh, Jack, Jack, there is a light!" And in an instant they were bumping pier posts, the rough sides of which were eagerly grasped by the bedraggled pair in the rowboat. They landed and tied the boat.

"Hey, what's doing down there?" called a man's voice from the shore.

Jack took Peggy's hand. "The owner of the place," he said to her softly. Then he called, "I'm lost with a lady."

There was silence from the shore, and then the man's voice came back through the rain:

"Lost! Who are you?"

"I'm John Howard of Hull university."

"All right, come along, Mr. Howard."

Jack and Peggy walked carefully up the pier, and through the rain they saw a great building that seemed strangely close to the water for a farmhouse. A man whose face they could not see in the darkness stepped forward.

"Come right in," he said and threw open a door. There on a long bench that faced a racing shell sat a dozen men.

"Hello, Howard!" said one in a surprised sort of way.

With one gasp of disgust Jack pulled Peggy back out of the light.

"The varsity boathouse!" he groaned as they hurried across the campus. "Gee, I have done it! We'll never hear the end of this. We must have rowed clear around that confounded lake. And the way I announced it to that chump who invited us in! We'll never hear the end of this."

"And my dose is a double one," groaned Peggy. "Think of the house committee."

Jack left her at the door of Rose cottage, and Peggy slowly climbed the stairs to report to the matron. But instead of fear a little tremor of joy made her throat quiver, and the prospect of her interview with the house committee was not even a needle point shadow on the clear serenity of her happiness, for as he said good night Jack had held her hand and whispered:

"Never mind, dear, we'll grin and bear it together. Won't we?"

Van Buren's Answers.

One day the merits of Van Buren were being discussed by a party of politicians on a Hudson river steamboat. One of the party had been dwelling on his noncommittalism and complaining that a plain answer to a plain question was never elicited from him.

"I'll wager dinners for the company," added he, "that if one of us shall go down to the cabin and ask Van Buren the simplest question that can be thought of he will evade a direct answer. Yes, and I'll give you leave, too, to tell Van Buren why you ask the question, and that there is a bet depending on the reply."

This seemed fair enough. One of the party was deputed to go down and try the experiment.

He found Van Buren, whom he knew well, in the saloon and said:

"Mr. Van Buren, some gentlemen on the upper deck have been accusing you of noncommittallism and have just laid a wager that you would not give a plain answer to the simplest question, and they deputed me to test the fact. Now, sir, allow me to ask you, 'Where does the sun rise?'"

Mr. Van Buren's brow contracted; he hesitated a moment, then said:

"The terms east and west are conventional, but"—

"That'll do," interrupted the interrogator. "We have lost the bet!"

And Got Rid of It.

Mrs. Pitley—They say he is so unkind to his wife. Mr. Pitley—That shows how people misjudge a man. I know it to be a fact that he spent one whole year endeavoring to make a satisfactory investment of his wife's money.—Town and Country.

DESKS OF FAMOUS MEN.

There Are Many of Them Scattered About the Country.

The desk of Salmon P. Chase, a plain piece of furniture made from mahogany, is in one of the rooms of the treasury department at Washington. There are many of these old desks scattered about the country, their chief claim to interest being that once some well known man leaned over them.

Alexander Hamilton's traveling desk, made of mahogany and measuring 12 by 16 inches and 10 inches high, is an interesting object. Upon this desk was written much of his literary work, and the worn green baize with which it is lined attests to the use to which it was put. There is a drawer in one side and several compartments for pens and ink, while upon the top is inlaid a silver plate with the name "General Alexander Hamilton" engraved upon it. Within the top is a strip of parchment which says, "Given by Mrs. General Schuyler to her daughter, Mrs. General A. Hamilton." No doubt the convenient size was what recommended it to the general.

Nathaniel Hawthorne's desk is preserved at the custom house, Salem, Mass. A desk at which he wrote some of his inimitable romances was just a board standing out from the wall at an angle. This is still in the tower room at Wayside, his home at Concord, Mass. Victor Hugo had in his Guernsey house a study built almost entirely of glass and perched upon the roof. Like Hawthorne, he, too, stood at his writing, and his desk was a mere shelf fastened by hinges to the wall.—Delineator.

Origin of a Phrase.

Many years ago the wild deer that roamed through the forests of England used to dig holes in the earth with their forefeet. They pawed it out sometimes to the depth of several inches, sometimes a foot or more. These holes were called "scrapes," and travelers at dusk or night or those who were careless about their footing often tumbled into them. They were laughed at for their heedlessness when they came home covered with mud, and, as this frequently occurred after they had been imbibing a bit, they were said to have "got into a scrape." Some Cambridge students took up this expression, and thus it came to be applied to people who had got into difficulties of various sorts.

Cooked Under Water.

In 1706 one James Austin laid a wager of $500 that he would cook a plum pudding ten feet beneath the surface of the Thames near Rotherhithe. The bet was readily accepted, and many people flocked to the appointed locale to watch this strange exhibition of the culinary art. Inclosed in a tin pan in the center of a sack of lime the pudding was lowered beneath the water, where for two hours and a half it remained. It was then taken up and partaken of by a committee, who declared that Austin had won his wager, the pudding being, if anything, overdone.

A Broad Hint.

"Mamma," said a six-year-old girl, entering the sitting room one morning recently, "don't you want some candy?"

The mother was writing a letter. "Why, yes, dear," she replied. "Give me a piece."

"I ain't dot any," came from the child, "an' I ain't dot any nickel to dit none."

She got the nickel.—Kansas City Times.

Morally Improving Habit.

The habit of dressing well grows on a man like the opium habit, but its consequences, instead of being disastrous, are delightful and socially as well as morally improving.—Sartorial Art Review.

Bashfulness may sometimes exclude pleasure, but seldom opens any avenue to sorrow or remorse.—Johnson.

ANGEL CHILDREN.

Is there any happier woman in this world than that mother whose each successive little one seems to her but one more darling angel to continually lift her thoughts toward the sunshine of perfect happiness? But sorry is the lot of that poor mother to whom motherhood has ceased to be a cause of rejoicing, but has become instead a burden to be dreaded and looked forward to with melancholy and apprehension. "About three months before our last baby was born (which is our fourth), writes Mrs. Nellie Carl, of Myrtlepoint, Coos Co., Oregon, 'my health was very poor. I had been troubled for about eight years with female disease. I doctored with good physicians but obtained no relief, so I wrote to the World's Dispensary Medical Association, and was advised to take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I did so, and am happy to say my health began to improve and I did my work up to the last, and felt splendid. "I got along finely during confinement, and have the healthiest baby I ever saw. When he was three months old he weighed eighteen pounds; he is now seven months old and weighs twenty-four pounds. I can say I have had no return of my old troubles. I thank you very much for the good you have done me."

Any woman may write to Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., a statement of her case, which will be considered in absolute confidence by this physician who stands among the foremost specialists of the century in the treatment of women's diseases. He will send her (in a plain sealed envelope) sound, sensible, valuable advice free of all charge.

Dr. Pierce's great thousand-page, illustrated Common Sense Medical Adviser will be sent free, paper-bound, for 21 one-cent stamps, to pay the cost of mailing only, or cloth-bound for 31 stamps.

The Good that is in the World

It is a beautiful creed that teaches men and women to understand that there is much good in this world and that underlying all the discordant strife that we read about, there is peace and right-doing and high thinking which has not been destroyed, but is only unheard of because of the clamor of the unharmonious minority. The world is growing better, although to read and hear of all the sorrow and misery we are almost prone to believe that there is nothimg else, and yet when we pause to consider, we realize that people take the good for granted, and so it exists without having any special attention paid to it. The optimist sees good in everything, the pessimist sees no good in anything, but we do not have to have any particular philosophy to look at the world. All we need is a keen observation and we will discover conditions as they exist. The malcontent believes all men selfish, not modifying his belief in any case, except perhaps to credit himself with unselfishness, which in itself shows him to be most selfish, for he refuses to look out of the windows of his soul and as a result of the environment of self or the surroundings he creates for himself within himself, his views become narrow and distorted. He sees as it were through a concave mirror, and beholds all the littleness in the world. The big-hearted, pulsing life, which is to be found if looked for right, does not appear to him to be. He does not see, for instance, the thousands of unselfish men who are daily paying hard-earned money into life insurance companies, that their families may be well supplied when death steps in and robs them of their providers. He does not see this, and you, observant readers, perhaps even you, have have not realized this fact, which so well demonstrates that all men are not all selfish.

Of domestic affairs we hear and read terrible accounts until men and women would all become cynical and skeptical if they were to believe that this was the only side, but it is as foolish to form judgments of domestic conditions from divorce court records as it would be to form opinion of men and women in general from prison rolls. It is not reasonable to judge the generality by the exception. In this again, domestic happiness is taken for granted and so it is not of devotion, kindness, self-sacrifice, joy and happy hearths that we hear, but of neglect, cruelty, selfishness, sorrow and wrecked homes. The dissemination of a creed which would teach men and women to look for, and make known the right side of life, would be of priceless value. We of course must not ignore deplorable conditions, for they do exist along with the brighter things, but we should emphasize the bright and hopeful in life and the atmosphere we will create by so doing will tend to better the dark and hopeless. If one is oppressed and sees no light he will give up and fall under his burden, where one gleam of hope may strengthen and save. Christian Science is to be commended because of the good it recognizes within man and his fellows, and if new thought means bright thought and the teachings of the physic college, which is to be founded on this coast, will be hopeful in tone, let us by all means have it. It is not neccessary to whistle through graveyards, but the old saying, "give the devil his due," which in this case means, give men and women credit for their good deeds, is not asking too much. The ideal thing the physic college might do, or some similar organization, would be to publish a magazine or periodical recording the good deeds of heroism and self-sacrifice and charity which abound in this world of ours. This side of life needs reflection, the darker side bedimming, the darkest side obscuring. "Everything good in a man thrives best when properly recognized." This is also true with everything in the world, for the world in the aggregate is as man, the unit

For Willie, it was slang.
But now in New York City,
Its Willus there for him,

Emmons, the boodling senator, is not to be pitied, and his greatest crime has been against his family, not the state.

The building going on around the California Northwestern depot will add much to the attractiveness af that part of town, and make the approach to Sonoma much better. It is a good idea to have the approach to any town look well and to give strangers a favorable impression as they pass through on the trains. More buildings and the laying out of gardens and little lawn plots near the depot would be a fine improvement.

If Scotty don't die after that auto smashup, it will be because Mr. Mephistopheles don't want him to stampede his subjects.

STATE BOARD OF TRADE

Expresses Unqualified Opposition to Having Transportation Rates Made by Commission

The California State Board of Trade has adopted the following preamble and resolution in opposition to conferring the power of rate-making on the Interstate Commerce Commission:

The California State Board of Trade hereby expresses its unqualified opposition to the policy of conferring upon the Interstate Commerce Commission the power to regulate rates of transportation upon interstate commerce carried by the railroads of the United States.

The conferring of such power would, in the opinion of this body, convert the Interstate Commerce Commission into a board of traffic managers for all the railroads carrying interstate traffic—a policy which would be the equivalent of a merger of such railroads and the extinguishment of every element of competition.

It would contravene the national policy crystallized in what is known as the anti-trust law, the provisions of which were so successfully invoked in resisting the merger of the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern Railroads.

It would vest the Interstate Commerce Commission with power to regulate the earning capacity of the $1,400,000,000 invested in the railroads of the country and by thus constituting that Commission a potent factor in the transportation business of the country would confer upon the railroads the moral right to enter the arena of politics in their corporate capacity as a measure of defense against the possible arbitrary and confiscatory exercise of this power.

It would engender at once sectional strife between the different portions of the country as to the measuse of protection which this power of regulation might be invoked to confer upon the various sections—a contest in which the newer and more sparsely settled regions of the United States would suffer by reason of the overmastering political power of the populous centers, and from this source of large h products of California are especially menaced.

The export commerce in the citrus and deciduous fruits, the dried and cured fruits, the vegetables, the wine and the lumber products of California must be carried an average distance of over two thousand five hundred miles to reach their center of distribution in the United States. These produtes compete with like Eastern products which are carried an average distance of less than two hundred and fifty miles. Owing to the disparity in volume between the east-bound and west-bound traffic, the railroads have heretofore carried the products of California the distance noted and delivered them in Eastern market at a rate that has enabled them to successfully compete with like products in the freight movement of which but one tenth of the distance has been covered.

That this fostering policy, referable to the existing conditions of traffic, would be continued under a political control and direction of freight distribution in the United States is not even probable.

In view of these objections,

BE IT RESOLVED by this board, That the Senators and Representatives in Congress from the State of California be requested to exercise their influence and cast their votes against the policy of conferring upon the Interstate Commerce Commission the power to fix the rates of transportation on the interstate commerce of this country.

Consumption

¶ There is no specific for consumption. Fresh air, exercise, nourishing food and Scott's Emulsion will come pretty near curing it, if there is anything to build on. Millions of people throughout the world are living and in good health on one lung.

¶ From time immemorial the doctors prescribed cod liver oil for consumption. Of course the patient could not take it in its old form, hence it did very little good. They can take and tolerate it for a long time. There is no oil, not excepting butter, so easily digested and absorbed by the system as cod liver oil in the form of Scott's Emulsion, and that is the reason it is so helpful in consumption where its use must be continuous.

¶ We will send you a sample free.

¶ Be sure that this picture in the form of a label is on the wrapper of every bottle of Emulsion you buy.

SINCLAIR CHARGED WITH ROBBERY

Man Who Took $20 From Violator of Fish and Game Laws is in Serious Trouble

Sam Sinclair, an employee of the Fair ranch, has been charged with robbery and has been arraigned in the Superior Court of this county. Sinclair, it is alleged, took $20 from old man Gumbert, the marsh recluse, who had an undersized bass in his possession. It seems that Sinclair discovered that Gumbert had caught the fish, and it is claimed that he set himself up as a court in the matter, and so frightened Gumbert that he gave him $20.

In some way the transaction leaked out, with the result that Sinclair is now in the meshes of the law.

Halloween Social a Jolly Success

The Halloween Social given Monday night by the Young People's League of the Congregational and Methodist churches was well attended and was a jolly success. Union Hall was charmingly grotesque with its decorations of weird jack-o'-lanterns and ghost-like figures, which flitted past you as you entered the doors. A realistic lightning and thunder storm preceded the program and added the neccessary grewsome touch to the scene. A good program followed, which was much appreciated by all those present. Through the courtesy of H. R. Dakin, a fine talking machine discoursed several good musical selections. Robt. Prussia sang and was followed by little Miss Bernice Hocker and Ramona Granice in recitation. Miss Meta Stofen rendered two vocal numbers and was much applauded. Miss Stofen has a well-trained voice and her notes are true and sweet. She was followed by Mrs. Palstine, who sang the beautiful ballad "You" with much expression. Mr. Cunningham in "coon" song and Mr. Cathcart in club swinging, brought this entertaining program to a close.

Games, fortune-telling and refreshments served to pass the remainder of the evening.

Bride Was Fair to Look Upon

Miss Dora Virginia Howe, who was married to Edgar L. McCoy last Saturday, was a bride fair to look upon. The home was prettily decorated for the occasion, and in her filmy gown of white organdy, Miss Howe looked as pretty as a picture. She was attended by her sister, Miss Zarifa Howe, who also wore white. The presents were costly and beautiful.

Masquerade a Successful Affair

The mask ball given by the Sonoma Baseball Club Halloween night was a big success. About forty couples in mask were present, and also a large number of spectators. One of the best costumes was that of Lloyd Hotz, who went as "Happy Hooligan." Everybody had a good time, and the boys are to be congratulated on the success of their dance.

NOVEMBER MEETING OF CITY DADS

Matters Relative to Community Welfare Discussed at Session Wednesday Night

The regular November meeting of the City Trustees was held Wednesday night. It developed that Mrs. Stearns had accepted the bonds and promised that the money would be here by the first of this month, but because of it failing to get here all bond business was postponed until Friday night.

The following claims were allowed: Gorham Rubber Company, merchandise, etc., $30.93; H. H. Granice, printing, 6.00; Chas. Togni, sprinkling, $75.00; James Albertson, salary, $15.00; W. Rambo, repairs, 1.00; W. O. Hocker, supplies, $32.90. Total, $160.83.

The bill of the Sonoma Valley Company was held up on account of the substitution of the arc light at the corner of Napa street and First-street East for the original thirty-two candle power light, which the board claims ought to be there.

A communication was received from the League of California Municipalties and from the City Trustees of Chico inviting the Board to be present at the annual convention, which meets at the latter place. The communications were placed on file.

A number of property owners on Napa street, including G. W. Reed, Ralph E. Murphy, Dr. Thomson and Claude Johnson, petitioned the Trustees to put in a stone curbing and to grade the streets in that vicinity. It was decided to allow them fifteen cents per running foot for curb, the balance to be paid by the property owners themselves. Bids will be advertised for and the work begun.

On motion of Trustee McDonell $99.00 was set aside for street work at different places in town where it is neccessary.

The City Marshal and City Treasurer's bonds were filed and approved. S. Schocken and S. Cuicci went on Marshal Albertson's bond of $2,500, and S. Cuicci, G. S. Harris, Marie Clewe and F. T. Duhring on City Treasurer Clewe's bond of 8,000.

Architect Lutgens was present at the meeting and an informal discussion of city hall building was indulged in relative to the kind of stone, tile, etc., to be used. It was suggested that all bidders send samples of the stone to be used for the building.

Halloween Pranks

Halloween pranks were played by the small boy Tuesday night in this place and many gates shifted their positions during the frolic, and signs were changed about in amusing confusion.

Duhring's egg cases were stacked high in front of Simmon's drug store, and the drinking fountain was piled up with hen coops and bicycle racks. Wm. Kerner's "O. K." sign was moved and hung in front of the M. E. Church.

One trick that was played was anything but funny, for it caused a lot of trouble. It seems that a drove of sheep had been put up in Weyl's corral and during the night they were let out. It took their driver several hours Wednesday morning to locate all his flock.

Former Resident Victim of Holdup

Carl Ludeman, formerly of this place, where he resided for several years, was the victim of a daring holdup in San Francisco last Saturday night in the liquor store of his father-in-law, where he is now employed. As a result Ludeman's father-in-law was forced to give up his money to the bold robber. It was then that Mr. Ludeman got busy. He gave chase to the robber and succeeded with the assistance of a policeman in capturing the thug and landing him in the city prison.

Mr. and Mrs. Debat of this place celebrated their tenth wedding anniversary last Sunday. A fine dinner was served and a large number of friends were present.

Halloween was celebrated in this town and a number of our people were victims of the practical joker. The most laughable one was on one of our rising young detectives, who expected to move to Schellville, but when he came to look at his wagon it was minus a wheel. At this writing nothing has been found of it, and it looks as if no clew, one way or the other, can be gotten of the missing circle.

J. J. Zander, a well-known summer visitor, was arrested in Petaluma last Tuesday. It seems that Zander, who is a race track tout, was at Petaluma a few months ago attending the races, and won so much of the yellow metal that he forgot to pay his hotel bill. A warrant was sworn out for his arrest, but Alec had disappeared. He happened, however, to drive to that place Tuesday, and the constable nailed him. After a short trial Zander was given thirty days in the Hotel de Grace, Santa Rosa, where you cannot beat a board bill.

BADLY INJURED AT GLEN ELLEN.

Wm. Camm Falls From a Building and Fractures His Skull.

Wm. Camm, an old and respected contractor of Petaluma and father of J. L. Camm of the well-known firm of Camm & Hedges, was badly injured while at work on a building at Glen Ellen last Wednesday. Mr. Camm was seized with a fainting spell and fell quite a distance from the ladder on which he was at work, and in the fall he struck on his head and fractured his skull. He was rendered unconscious and found to be suffering from concussion of the brain, with partial paralysis. Up to Thursday he had not regained consciousness, and the accident may result fatally, as Mr. Camm is quite old.

THRILLING EXPERIENCE

Edwin Emerson Will Tell of Running the Blockade at Port Arthur.

Edwin Emerson, the noted war correspondent, will lecture here in Union Hall on Wednesday evening, November 15th. Mr. Emerson is one of that class who wander the earth incessantly. His experiences have taken him all over the world to whatever spot a war of any kind was progressing at the time. As one of Roosevelt's Rough Riders he saw service in Cuba. As a correspondent he has mixed in all the imbroglios of recent years.

One of the most thrilling adventures was running the blockade of Port Arthur during its investment, and the people of this town and valley will have the pleasure of listening to the stories of his experience in this dare-devil undertaking, for in his lecture, "In and Out of Port Arthur During the Siege," Mr. Emerson details the thrilling story of his journey on a frail craft through the blockading squadron into Port Arthur, his interview with General Stoessel, his expulsion from the port, and his capture by the Japanese.

This lecture will be illustrated by over one hundred views and moving pictures, and will include many snap shot pictures taken on the spot.

Mr. Emerson is a fluent and graceful speaker and his remarks are salted with a dry wit that gives an unexpected turn to many of his periods. He has delivered this lecture in San Francisco, Berkeley, and other towns surrounding the bay, and judging from all reports our readers will make a mistake if they fail to hear this lecture.

A Valuable Antidote

[Original.]

"There's an old saw, 'An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.' I am a practical illustration of its truth. Indeed, an ounce of fluid once saved my life. As a medicine? Well, no. I wasn't sick, and I hadn't been poisoned. Nevertheless that ounce saved my life.

"My father had been an officer in the United States navy—not when our ships had come to be big machine shops, but light wooden affairs, that skimmed the waves like a bird. He went aloft just before the struggle between the states, and I, being about sixteen at the time, preferred to go into active service afloat rather than to the Naval academy. As it was, I saw nothing but blockading service, and after the war was doomed to the merchant service.

"This is only preliminary to what I'm going to tell you. In the last year of the sixties I was mate of a brigantine, and we were picking up goods in ports on the China sea. One evening we were coming down through the strait of Malacca when, after passing one of the islands at the southern end, we saw on our port quarter and nearly abreast of us as queer a looking little craft as ever sat on the water. She wasn't a common trader, for she was shaped for speed. She wasn't a yacht; she wasn't sleek enough for a yacht. Besides, she didn't carry a yachting flag—or any flag whatever, for that matter—which set our teeth to chattering in no time, for I never knew but one kind of craft that didn't show colors, and when that kind do show them they invariably hoist the skull and crossbones.

"It wasn't long before we could see that she was shaping her course to narrow the distance between us, and we shaped ours to keep apart. This didn't suit the suspicious vessel, and she put her nose closer still and before long was heading right for us. Then we could see the smoke bulging out of her stack, and she came through the water like a present day motor boat.

"You couldn't get me to go over what followed for the biggest farm or the biggest ship in the world. After the crew, captain and first mate had stepped off the plank and it came my turn one of the pirate crew came up to the captain and said something to him. The captain turned to me.

"'Where's the treasure box?' he asked.

"There was no treasure box worthy of the name aboard, but I caught at a straw and pretended to try to remember.

"'Come, hurry up with your thinking if you want a comfortable death in cool water. There are hot irons for people with poor memories.'

"'I don't really know, captain, but I suspect there's a lot of money in the ship, and if any one can find it I can.'

"'Well, hunt for it.'

"Since my life depended on finding money, I hunted for my life. It was dusk when I began, and I worked hard till 9 o'clock, when the captain sent for me to come into the cabin. He had a fine dinner set before him and was just falling to. He asked me if I had found the treasure, and I admitted that I had not.

"'Sit down here and tell me what you know about it.'

"I concocted a yarn about a suspicious looking box that the captain had watched while it was being brought aboard and made the story plausible. I let out that I had been in the United States navy. The pirate pricked up his ears at this and passed me the bottle.

"An idea, a hope, a straw to catch at! Could I drink the man drunk? I remembered how my father when in the navy had told me of terrible drinking bouts between the American and British naval officers and how a dirty, yellow faced, pigtailed man had put him on to a secret whereby he could go through the worst bibular contest and come out perfectly sober. There was a bottle of olive oil on the table—some we had taken in at Leghorn—that the pirate had used to make a potato salad with. I clumsily knocked it over, picked it up and with a spoon ladled the spilled oil into my wineglass. Then I looked for something to turn it into from the glass and, not seeing anything, drank it off. My host remarked that to do such a thing would make him sick as a dog, but took no further notice of my act. As I had supposed, he was a hard drinker, and we sat pouring down one bottle after another. Now and again I would pique him by suggesting that he had had enough, whereupon he would call for a fresh bottle, and I could see he was bent on laying me out. His original intention was to find out if I really knew anything about the ship's treasure, but as we proceeded he became interested in showing me that he could put me under the table. I drank every time he did, and as I did not show any effect of the liquor the captain was astonished. But he wouldn't give up, and we drank on. I could hear sounds from without, indicating that his men had got into our liquor and were roaring drunk. At midnight I had the satisfaction to see the pirate captain slide under the table, while I was comparatively sober.

"What was it? The olive oil. I had drunk a second glass in the middle of the bout, and the two saved me. I don't know whether the oil floats on top of the liquor and keeps the fumes from the brain or whether it forms a coating in the stomach that prevents the absorption of alcohol. All I know is it worked like a charm.

"I waited till there was not a sound or a whoop on the ship, then stole out, dropped into a small boat and rowed to shore." THEODORE GILSEN.

Tourist Excursion Parties to the East Over the Seenic Line of the World.

If you are going East and want to save money, yet travel with pleasure and comfort, it will pay you to investigate our Personally Conducted Tourist Excursions. These parties are in charge of a Manager, who accompanies the cars through to St. Louis, Chicago and the Atlantic Coast, and gives his personal attention to the welfare of each passenger in his charge. The schedules are arranged so as to pass through the world-famed scenery on the Denver & Rio Grande Railroad by daylight. Open-top Observation Cars (something entirely new) are free to all passengers. Let us know when you are going and we will be glad to give you full information about your trip, the lowest rates of fare and send you free of charge some handsomely illustrated books of travel.

Constipation

Health is absolutely impossible, if constipation be present. Many serious cases of liver and kidney complaint have sprung from neglected constipation. Such a deplorable condition is unnecessary. There is a cure for it. Herbine will speedily remedy matters. C. A. Lindsay, P. M., Bronson, Fla. writes, Feb. 12, 1902: "Having used Herbine, I find it a fine medicine for constipation. 50c a bottle. Sold by L. S. Simmons.

Neuralgia Pains

Rheumatism, lumbago and sciatic pains yield to the penetrating influence of Ballard's Snow Liniment.

It penetrates to the nerves and bone and being absorbed into the blood, its healing properties are conveyed to every part of the body, and effect some wonderful cures. 25c, 50c and $1.00. Sold by L. S. Simmons.

Zangwill's Revenge.

While yet an obscure writer Israel Zangwill submitted to an American magazine a poem, which he received back in due course with the customary slip expressing the editor's great sorrow at his inability to make use of the contribution.

The manuscript found its way into a pigeonhole, to be resurrected some time later when fame had found him out. The poem was sold to the same magazine to which it had originally been sent, but this time the editor cabled a request to the author and paid a fancy price for it.

Best Liniment On Earth

Henry D. Baldwin, Supt City Water Works, Shullsburg, Wis. writes, "I have tried many kinds of liniment but I have never received much benefit until I used Ballard's Snow Liniment for rheumatism and pains. I think it the best liniment on earth." 25c, 50c and $1.00. Sold by L. S Simmons.

Cured Consumption

Mrs. B. W. Evans Clearwater, Kans., writes: "My husband lay sick for three months. The doctors said that he had quick consumption. We procured a bottle of Ballard's Horehound Syrup, and it cured him. That was six years ago. Since then we have always kept a bottle in the house. We cannot do without it. For coughs and colds it has no equal". 25c 50c and $1.00. Sold by L. S. Simmons.

Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. This is the most successful medicine in the world for bowel complaints, and is the only remedy that will cure chronic diarrhoea. Every bottle is warranted. For sale by Shoults & Co.

MAKING PIPE ORGANS.

Interesting Work That Is Done In the Voicing Room.

Both the metal and wooden pipes of a pipe organ are made on the selfsame principle of the willow whistles that every man made when he was a boy, and so, after all, a pipe organ, the mightiest musical instrument yet invented, is but the evolution of that primitive pipe of Pan, the willow whistle.

The most interesting place in an organ factory is the voicing room. Up to the time the pipes enter this room they are as dumb as brooms sticks. Here the breath of life is breathed into them, and they are made to speak, each in the voice intended by its maker. Here the big fat pipes are taught to thunder out their diapason and those scarce the diameter of a slate pencil and one-half an inch long to utter the shrill whistle and others the thousands of varying tones between. And not only must the pipes of one stop speak correctly as individuals and members of their own particular family, but they must be in accord with all the hundreds of others in whose midst they are to live. To see that they do this is the work of a man whose ear is keen to the slightest variation and who must know why a pipe does not speak as it should and how to make it. One by one the pipes are set upon the wind chest standing here, with the bellows and all the internal mechanism of an organ properly adjusted and with a keyboard in front of him the voicer tests each one. By changing the size and shape of the aperture through which the wind passes he governs the tone until it is exactly what it should be, a task which only a man with the nicest sense of sound can accomplish.

No Poison in Chamberlain's Cough Remedy

From Napier New Zealand, HERALD: Two years ago the Pharmacy Board of New South Wales, Australia, had an analysis made of all the cough medicines that were sold in that market. Out of the entire list they found only one that they declared was entirely free from all poisons. This exception was Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, made by the Chamberlain Medicine Company, Des Moines, Iowa, U. S. A. The abscence of all narcotics makes this remedy the safest and best that can be had; and it is with a feeling of security

A Kind Voice.

There is no power of love so hard to get and to keep as a kind voice. A kind hand is deaf and dumb. It may be rough in flesh and blood, yet do the work of a soft heart and do it with a soft touch. But there is no one thing that love so much needs as a sweet voice to tell what it means and feels, and it is hard to get and keep it in the right tone. One must start in youth and be on the watch night and day, at work and at play, to get and keep a voice that shall speak at all times the thoughts of a kind heart. It is often in youth that one gets a voice or a tone that is sharp, and it sticks to him through life and stirs up ill will and grief and falls like a drop of gall on the sweets of home. Watch it day by day as a pearl of great price, for it will be worth more to you in days to come than the best pearl hid in the seas. A kind voice is to the heart what light is to the eye. It is a light that sings as well as shines.—Elihu Burritt.

When You Have a Bad Cold

You want a remedy that will not only give quick relief, but effect a permanent cure.

You want a remedy that will counteract any tendency toward pneumonia;

You want a remedy that will relieve the lungs and keep expectoration easy.

You want a remedy that is pleasant and safe to take

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy meets all of these requirements and for the speedy and permanent cure of bad colds stands without a peer. For sale by Shoults & Co.

Herb W. Edwards Injured

Herb W. Edwards of Des Moines, Iowa, got a fall on an icy walk last winter, spraining his wrist and bruising his knees. "The next day," he says, "they were so sore and stiff I was afraid I would have to stay in bed, but I rubbed them well with Chamberlain's Pain Balm and after a few applications all soreness had disappeared. I feel that this bottle of Pain Balm saved me several day's time, to say nothing of the suffering." This liniment is for sale by Shoults & Co.

You Can Make Money
by purchasing an interest in this big Cash Store. The people of the west know that this is the largest Mail Order House on the Pacific Coast, and the magnitude of our sales enable us to undersell our competitors. So we save our customers money and make money in so doing.

You Can Share our Profits
the Cash Store is yours to the extent that you invest. A fifty dollar investment gives you five shares of stock which we absolutely guarantee to bear interest at not less than 6 per cent. per annum. Besides, you will secure everything you require for eating, use and wear at owners' prices.

Think of the Saving that you will make every year on your household supplies alone by becoming a stockholder in this big profit sharing Cash Store. Besides, you get owners' rates on Furniture, Dry Goods, Clothing, Shoes—in fact everything that anyone needs in every walk in life. Then there is the annual income you earn from your investment which will be always greater than 6 per cent.

A Judicious Investment
you will never find a more profitable use for your money than by buying a partnership in this big profit sharing Cash Store. Every day you will realize its benefits in the money you save on household necessities. Even a fifty dollar investment gives you a material interest in every article that goes in or out of the greatest Cash Store Mail Order Business in the west.

Your Last Chance
to secure stock for $10.00 a share may be in this advertisement. This year's earnings will warrant an increase in the price of the stock—five years ago it sold for $3 a share. Hundreds of new customers are buying here every month. You are bound to make money from this investment. Perhaps your money is earning 3 per cent. in a Savings Bank. The bank may be safe, but it is no safer than this big, solid Cash Store which doubles the earning power of your money. If you are satisfied that this is the kind of investment that you've been looking for, just make draft, check or money order payable to SMITHS' CASH STORE, Inc., or Harper A. Smith, President. If you would like to know more of the Cash Store, call and and see us or mail this coupon today—it in no way obligates you.
